Nancy McCarthy thought she knew the legendary folk singer Gabriel because he'd been such a huge part of her life. She spent hours every day, from her twenties to her sixties, listening to and loving every note of every song he'd ever recorded, over and over again. For decades she longed to join this singer in his journey to make the world a more loving and peaceful place. And then, one day, the unthinkable happened. Suddenly, magically, Nancy found herself acting as the star's personal assistant. Gabriel, the legendary flower-power folk singer who burst onto the scene at the Love and Peace Festival, who had appeared on the world's largest stages and touched the hearts of millions around the globe, was now relying on Nancy to keep his career going. She found herself handling Gabriel's bookings, press releases, and media contacts. She even assisted in assembling tracks for his next CD. This novel follows the lives of the former CSR rep, Nancy McCarthy, the folk singer Gabriel, Dr. Garrison Fowler, and network DJ Liz Baker, until, one hot summer evening in a northwest Arkansas auditorium, the four lives all come together. And when Gabriel begins to hurt her and those she loves, Nancy has a decision to make. Does she drop a falling star?
