SECRETS: THINGS I NEVER TOLD YOU Bob Woodard

Nearly all of the 83 poems in this is captivating book are one page, yet they tell a complete story with clever and often surprise endings. They are drawn from the author's own experience as a wise and gentle therapist sharing his appreciation for the intriguing way life shows up. There are poems of romance, humor, facing death, loss, relocation, inspiration, fascinating characters, and happy-endings.

Change often gives birth to poetry. Over a four year period, the author went through a series of changes in his life. He was separated, eventually divorced, went through the renewal that romances bring and eventually remarried. He lost both parents, changed his professional life, sold two houses in an urban area and moved to a small town.

Transitions like these make us humble teaching us we are not "in charge" and, eventually, we wisely surrender our need to be in charge. As we grow on our journey through change, we learn how to better commune with ourselves, use the guidance the Divine within ourselves and one another.

These poems arrived one at a time in the order they are presented here. They were the gift of change written spontaneously with the prompting of spirit. Perhaps it was the Poem Spirit. In each event, they came easily and with help from somewhere beyond.

These poems are shared with you hoping you find them a blessing in some way, if only to let you know someone else has shared some of your journey through the transitions of life and change bring.
