Crimes of Fashion Jill Beaudette

A message hidden in a dress label begins the unraveling of a fashion empire.

SYNOPSIS:

A lie that caused Breezy Cristofori to run from Nathaniel Markham is uncovered when they meet by chance 18 years later. Nathaniel is a decorated Vietnam war veteran and now a U.S. Senator. Breezy is an artist, a mother, and the wife of Carlton de Veers, the ruthless head of the Rêvant fashion empire. When she discovers a note hidden in the label of a Rêvant dress, it's a cry for help that galvanizes Breezy to look inside her lifeless marriage. With the help of friends, a daring plan is designed to find the girl who wrote the note, a search that exposes Carlton's complicity in an underworld of Chinese slave labor and drugs. As his empire begins to crumble, Breezy finds the courage to face her troubled past and a way to love Nathaniel once again.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

After years of writing speeches, brochures and instructional manuals for other people, author Jill Beaudette focuses now on writing the stories SHE wants to tell. You're holding the first – a story of greed, corruption and murder in a haute couture fashion house. Her next novel, about four women facing the death of a friend who has held them together since childhood, will be out next year.
