For 150 years the materialist-reductionist view of the world has dominated western thinking and academe. Man has been reduced to the level of a machine whose existence is due to a mere fluke. This nihilism percolated throughout society, making human existence of dubious significance. The scientific revolution has made life easier, but not more meaningful. The result has been a spiritual wasteland, that has certainly not improved the human lot. But materialist science has lied. Above all, it forgot Hamlet's lines: "There are more things on heaven and earth, Horatio/ than are dreamt of in your philosophy" By upending long-held views, world-famous neuroscientist Dr Canavero proves that what is at the basis of reality, consciousness, is immortal... and so are you.
